Morrill, of Vermont: In the Senate of the United States, April 26, 1876 Five million and a half of our population cannot write and four million and a half cannot read. Of illiterate male adults, twenty years of age and over, we have 1,611,213, of which number 748,470 are whites. There are thus more illiterate voters, among either white or colored, than the usual majority of any party taking part at any national election. They are, therefore, the potent auxiliaries of all parties, the decisive make-weights, and must more or less control the destinies of the country. Can any happy augury of ages to come be drawn from these dismal facts? Do men gather grapes of thorns? The liberty and equality of an immense number of illiterate people, unmarked by intellectual eminence of any sort, empty of all virtuous gratitude springing from the memories of childhood and the schoolroom toward a parental government, is not such a state or condition as freemen toil for, nor such as they can be expected to maintain, love, and cherish. Along with entire liberty and equality before the law we behold among mankind the foremost and the hindermost as well, and there will be distinctions and differences in both the power and the industry of mankind, and both of hand and brain, with no two alike among them all, good or bad. It should be the mission of American legislators to offer sure means for the greatest possible development of this power and industry, and to diminish inequality by leveling upward and not downward. Thus only shall we be able to prove that republican...
