The wand I hold is one that Cupid gave As looking on me with his happy eyes, He bade me come and welcome every one, Unto his home - free and frolic Fairyland; Where things are made of no such mortal stuff As marble, iron, bronze or gold. Fancies there And visions of the mind make all that is; Fancies - that have in them such potent life That once they come on earth to men, they live Forevermore - though Kingdoms fall and nations Die and e'en the names of poets are forgot, Come thither now, but leave thy cares behind; For Care hath no more place in Fairyland, Than has the miser's gold a place in Heaven. All's as you make it. Yield thee to Joy or Joy Can never take you. For e'en the wand of An Immortal is powerless over such As do refuse its service....
