A true man or woman will court personal responsibility. He and she know that it is the making of them. It is what will ally them unflinchingly to duty, which keeps one at his post, to die there, if need be. A kindred spirit is necessary in the common walks of life, and it is born of a sense of personal responsibility. Pericles said that he accepted personal responsibility as a duty. When leaving his house to perform a public service, he would say to himself, Remember, Pericles, that thou art going to speak and act for men born in the arms of liberty. civ. perils of success. In the military family of Washington was one, in the early part of the Revolution, whose great ability, courage, and social qualities commanded universal praise. He had no peer in the service of the court and the camp. Washington himself regarded his rich endowments of mind and person as the assurance of the highest and most valuable service to his oppressed and distracted country. But when, at the height of his success in public life, Aaron Burr allowed his baser passions to usurp the place of patriotism and purity, he died, not as Adams and Jefferson, and Washington sank into the grave, amidst the tears and prayers of a great nation, but in shame, solitude, and gloom this profligate, whose ambition it was to tread the fairest flowers into the dust, passed away to the bar...
